

ASSEMBLY

Author: Bronwyn Sutton, Speech Language Pathologist, BEST Autism Therapy

At my school we have assembly. Assembly is a time when the Principal talks to all of the kids at my school. The principal talks about what is happening at school. Sometimes, kids get prizes and awards.

Assemblies are usually for a lot of kids. Usually it is not just my class. It might even be the whole school.

At assembly all of the kids sit on the ground. The teachers stand around us. We sit cross legged and listen. They can be very long and there is a lot of talking. If I feel like moving, I can play with my shoe laces. It's really hard to sit still for a long time. But I know this is what school students do at my school.
